

BALAZSBOLYGO bsc, bsc

Having stemmed from a Hungarian family of photographers, I subconsciously drifted towards photography from an early age whilst playing in my grandfather's attic amidst glass plate negatives, archaic enlargers as well as his lifetimes' back catalogue of images. By my late teens this progressively lead me to an ambition of becoming a cameraman as I started my path in the film industry, initially working as a clapper loader, then as a focus puller under many top UK DoP's.

Eventually, after achieving a BA first class degree from the London College of Printing, I completed my training at the National Film School, and have since been working as a cinematographer. Though, I am predominantly based in the UK, I work all over the world and currently rove between television drama, commercials and feature films.
